Where Are The Suffragets?

BY GEORGE B. WATERS
WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—It was argued in the last days of the hard suffrage campaign that legislatures ought to ratify in order to release the army of women striving for the vote for other lines of endeavor. The organizers for the National Woman's Party, who were paid salaries, worked hard in order to work themselves out of jobs. If a bunch of carpenters had been building a fence and saw no other jobs in sight, they might have spent two days on it when it could be done in one. But not these girls! In their lobbying before legislatures, and especially in Tennessee, for final victorial militant, has become an author and has already published her first book, "Faded For Freedom." Lady Brannan, beautiful society girl of Baltimore, left the stirring days of picketing and prison sentences and now teaches European history at Columbia University. More Teachers

The suffrage victory added to the supply of teachers when Mary Dubrow, Passaic, N. J., took a job in New York, they forgot their salaries would stop when the vote was taken. Weren't Idle Long However, these brilliant young women weren't idle long. Not one of them needed to search the help-wanted columns for something to do. They were sought by employers—or husbands. Betty Gram, Portland, Ore., who had dropped her musical education four years ago to answer the call of Alice Paul for suffrage pickets not afraid of prison, sailed a few weeks ago for Germany to complete her musical studies. Doris Stevens, Omaha, who quit her musical studies to become a ball, an industrial permit school in her home town.

Hazel Hunkins, Billings, Mont., has sailed for England to make a study of the cooperative movement and will soon return with her information to be given to groups of farmers and workers. Other girl workers in the suffragist movement after they helped prove women's place isn't in the home all the time, decided to prove woman's freedom to choose. Iris Calderhead, Kansas City, for instance, married John Brishen Walker and with him edits a magazine; Clara Louise Rowe, Syracuse, N. Y., is now Mrs. Donald McGraw; Miss Rebecca Hourwich, New York City, is the wife of Ferdinand de Royster, short-story writer, and the mother of a small feminist daughter. Vivian Pierce has taken up philanthropic work. Several of the organizers of the Woman's Party have remained with it to help with the organization of its national convention, Feb. 15. These are: Anita Pollitzer, Charleston, S. C.; Catherine Flanagan, Hartford, Conn.; Sue White, Lebanon, Tenn.; and Elizabeth Kallb, Houston, Texas.

RED PEP'S PHILOSOPHY

"It's alright to pin your faith to some things but be sure you use a safety pin."
We have pinned our faith to this community for a good many years and have supplied much of the lumber and building materials that have gone to the buildings. We expect to be in the limelight many more years ready to give that quality and service that has made patrons have faith in our business methods. We do not say Lumber is good Lumber, but we do say that Good Lumber and Building Materials are the cheapest in the end. That is why people have faith in us and our goods.

Interstate Commerce Commission Is Asked to Set Aside Arizona Ruling Denying Railroads Rate Increase

PHOENIX, Nov. 27.—Railroads operating in Arizona have petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission to set aside a recent order by the Arizona Corporation Commission denying application by the carriers for increased intrastate freight rates and passenger fares to conform to rates granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission on interstate traffic, it became known today. The petition covers 16 printed pages and is accompanied by the order of the state commission. Corporation Commissioner E. A. Jones said today he believed the state commission would be given opportunity to defend its action before the close of the present year. Denial was based on the ground that the railroads had not complied with state law. Speedy hearing of the case was believed probable by the state commission in view of the action of the Interstate Commerce Commission in setting for December 1 the hearing in the Nevada case. The Nevada commission, like that of Arizona, recently denied application by the carriers for increased rates and appeal was taken to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Members of the Arizona commission today expressed belief that for the reason that the higher rates were denied on the ground of failure to comply with state law, the recent ruling by the Interstate Commerce Commission in the Nevada case might not be held to apply in the Arizona case. In the New York case the federal commission held that the government under the transportation act had a right to apply interstate rates to intrastate traffic.
